What is the IN3?

Founded between 1999 and 2000 by Gabriel Ferraté (UOC and IN3 president) and Imma Tubella (UOC vice president for research and IN3 vice president), the Internet Interdisciplinary Institute (IN3) is a research centre at the Universitat Oberta de Catalunya (UOC) specializing in the study of the network society. The network society is the result of increased centrality and changes in the conditions for generating knowledge and processing information and data, which were brought on by the emergence of the internet and digital technologies (ICT).

The IN3, unlike other research centres, connects human sciences (social sciences, health sciences, humanities, arts, etc.) with engineering disciplines, particularly computer science and telecommunications. IN3 research, currently carried out by 11 research groups, is grounded in multidisciplinarity, transdisciplinarity and interdisciplinarity. On the engineering side, the IN3 creates, designs and prescribes new technologies that feed the network society and have an impact on society. And on the human sciences side, the IN3 analyses the effects of new technologies on society and identifies social needs in the context of the network society. The interrelation between engineering disciplines and human sciences at the IN3 distinguishes its research work, through which it aims to solve the social and technological challenges of the network society.

In order to maintain scientific excellence, the IN3 regularly hosts meetings of the Scientific Advisory Board. This board, made up of ten researchers from various research centres and universities in Europe and the United States, serves a dual purpose. First, the board periodically evaluates the IN3's research groups and, second, it advises the IN3 on attracting new talent and suggests areas of improvement for the future.

Introduction

Mission, vision and values of the IN3

Mission

The IN3's mission, based on research on the knowledge society (network society), puts transversality and interdisciplinarity at the forefront, placing special emphasis on the interaction between Human and Engineering Sciences, and establishes social progress as a major research goal.

Vision

With regard to its vision, the IN3 aspires to become a pioneering reference centre in terms of the collaboration of the life sciences and the engineering disciplines in order to conduct frontier research on the network society. To this end, it focuses its research efforts on analysis of the effect of ICT and internet development on human activity, leading the formulation of technological solutions to address the needs and demands of the network society, and, in doing so, contributing to social progress.

Values

The IN3's values are commitment, respect, transparency, professionalism and sustainability.

Introduction

Statement for the 2021 report

In the third volume of his celebrated trilogy on the information age, Professor Manuel Castells, the founder and lead researcher of the IN3 (Internet Interdisciplinary Institute) wrote:

“The promise of the Information Age is the unleashing of unprecedented productive capacity by the power of the mind. I think, therefore I produce. In so doing, we will have the leisure to experiment with spirituality, and the opportunity of reconciliation with nature, without sacrificing the material well-being of our children. The dream of the Enlightenment, that reason and science would solve the problems of humankind, is within reach.”

Knowledge and the power of the mind, as Professor Castells put it, being transmitted unconstrained by space and time is the driving force behind the hyper-digitalized societies of the 21st century.

Introduction

The IN3 was created in the 1999/2000 academic year to conduct cutting-edge research into the network society, i.e. the interactions between digital technologies (mainly the internet) and the wide-ranging fields of human society. Today, with more up-to-date terminology, we might say that the IN3 researches the digital transformation of society. This research is possible due to the confluence of disciplines that would appear – at least in principle – to be far removed from one another: the human & social sciences coming together with computer science. Interdisciplinary collaboration across these two important areas of knowledge allows us not only to analyse how society is being transformed, but also to participate in this transformation with the aim of contributing to the progress of humanity, while doing our bit to fulfil the prophecy made by Professor Castells.

In the 2019/2020 academic year we should have celebrated the 20th anniversary of the IN3. However, with the pandemic making its cruel presence felt early in 2020, the commemoration of two decades of research had to be postponed for another year. In 2021 we managed to hold a number of 20th anniversary events and reflected on society's changes over two decades of digitalization. The workshop "The Network society today: (revisiting) the information age trilogy" took stock of this progress and also looked ahead to the future that digitalization may have in store for us from a perspective perhaps less tinged with optimism than the quote at the beginning of this text. What we can unequivocally state is that the transformation that will take place in the next 20 years will be no less radical than that which took place between the establishment of the IN3 and now, and we will be lucky not only to bear witness to it, but also to be among its instigators.

Introduction

I would like to take this opportunity to highlight and appreciate the efforts of every single member of the team throughout these two years under the pandemic. Now, as we appear to be seeing light at the end of the tunnel and are about to move into the UOC's new research hub in the 22@ technology district of Barcelona, it seems like an opportune moment to congratulate the team for the hard work done in these two intense years, the excellent results of which are reflected in this report. Let's hope that the new post-pandemic situation and the new, closer physical location of the IN3 in the research hub will bring about renewed growth for the Institute and encourage interdisciplinary collaboration between our team and the rest of the UOC's academic staff. We are also implementing a new strategic plan that will require our full commitment and energy. The IN3's third decade is off to a thrilling start.

Knowledge and research areas

The IN3's knowledge areas line up with the research areas pursued by its 11 groups.

Care and Preparedness in the Network Society (CareNet)

Understanding the impact of technology, especially ICTs, on the new social and cultural order of care and alertness, and on crisis and disaster preparedness.

Kriptography and Information Security for Open Networks (KISON)

Researching the security and privacy of decentralized networks, and protecting intellectual property when dealing with internet-based digital content.

Internet Computing & Systems Optimization (ICSO)

Developing optimization systems to create a smarter world, and developing, analysing and optimizing internet-based computing and collaboration systems.

Gender and ICT (GenTIC)

Analysing and identifying the gender relations involved in the design, development and use of scientific and technological innovations, with particular emphasis on ICT and the STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) fields.

Complex Systems @ IN3 (CoSIN3)

Exploring the underlying mechanisms in complex networked systems, based on the convergence between computational social science and urban science.

Systems, Software and Models (SOM Research Lab)

Studying systems and software engineering, especially with regard to promoting the rigorous use of software models and engineering principles in software design.

Urban Transformation and Global Change Laboratory (TURBA Lab)

Analysing the multidimensional features of socio-environmental and socio-technological transformations at the intersection of cities and digital technologies.

Communication Networks & Social Change (CNSC)

Analysing new forms of civil participation and political expression brought about by networked movements and emerging technopolitical practices, and analysing the role of mobile communication among non-central social groups, elderly people and the low-income population.

Wireless Networks Research Lab (WiNE)

Studying the manufacture of internet-connected systems, prioritizing sustainability and performance from a rational and industry convergent research perspective.

Dimmons

Researching commons, specifically as an organizational form of production (commons-based peer production, CBPP, also known as the sharing economy or social innovation).

Global Literary Studies Research Lab (GlobaLS)

Analysing the history of literature from a global, decentralized and interdisciplinary perspective.

IN3 Visiting Program

The IN3 Visiting Program aims to create a space for interdisciplinary exchange of an international nature among researchers at different stages of their research careers. The welcoming of visiting academic staff serves a dual purpose. First, it makes it easier for researchers visiting the IN3 to find their place in a consolidated and interdisciplinary research environment. Second, it offers IN3 researchers the opportunity to learn and share knowledge, the possibility of opening up new lines of research and the consolidation, and possible expansion, of networks. The IN3 Visiting Program entails a dual commitment. The IN3 commits to providing, for the duration of the academic's stay, the necessary conditions for working. In turn, the visiting scholar commits to securing the necessary funding for their stay and to contributing, through one or more products resulting from their visit, to the IN3's interdisciplinary exchange space.

The Visiting Program involves a two-sided commitment. For its part, the IN3 agrees to ensure the necessary conditions for the visiting scholar to carry out their stay, from start to finish. In turn, the visiting scholar undertakes to secure the necessary funding for their stay and to contribute, through one or more products resulting from their visit, to the IN3's environment of multidisciplinary exchange.

Gender and ICT (GenTIC)

The 2nd ACT International Synergy Conference, organized by the GenTIC research group as part of the project ACT – Communities of PrACTice for Accelerating Gender Equality and Institutional Change in Research and Innovation across Europe, took place on 11 and 12 February. At the conference, the ACT Consortium described the contribution made towards gender equality in universities, research centres and organizations based on the concept of communities of practice (CoP).

International Symposium on Global Literary Studies: Key Concepts

30 14 speakers and 35 participants

Global Literary Studies Research Lab (GlobaLS)

The International Symposium on Global Literary Studies, organized by the GlobaLS research group as part of the ERC project Social Networks of the Past. Mapping Hispanic and Lusophone Literary Modernity, 1898-1959, took place on 20 and 21 May. International scholars with expertise in various research areas (sociology of literature, novel studies, narratology, cultural transfer, translation studies, ecocriticism, digital humanities, world cinema and gender studies) came together to address the current and future directions of world literary studies from an interdisciplinary perspective.

Mundane Media Moments: Ageing, the Ordinary and Everyday Life

30 6 speakers and 40 participants

Care and Preparedness in the Network Society (CareNet) y Communication Networks & Social Change (CNSC)

The round-table discussion, organized by the CareNet and CNSC research groups as part of the project Ageing + Communication + Technologies (ACT): Experiencing a Digital World in Later Life, in collaboration with the Socio-Gerontechnology Network, took place online on 16 June. Speakers and participants discussed the role of digital media practices in the lives of older people and the possible influence of this age group on research into digital media practices.

The IN3 celebrated its 20th anniversary in a hybrid event on 3 June. The IN3's anniversary coincided with a key milestone, as 2021 also marked 25 years since Professor Manuel Castells published the first volume of his trilogy The Information Age. As a way to commemorate these two anniversaries, the IN3 held an event titled The Network society today: \(revisiting\) the information age trilogy. Following a talk by Manuel Castells himself, called "The network society in the age of pandemics", a group of prominent figures from inside and outside the UOC-IN3 engaged in a round-table discussion focused on Castells's work and its implications for the present day.
